A hundred years on the hill

Southwestern's oldest building on the Weatherford campus is turning 100 years old.

In honor of the Old Science Building, a special celebration will take place during homecoming activities Oct. 15-16.

Dr. Peter Grant, chair of the celebration committee, said a ceremony will be held Friday, Oct. 15, at 3 p.m. on the south lawn of the building. Everyone is invited.

Among the people on the program are SWOSU President Randy Beutler, Weatherford Mayor Mike Brown, SWOSU Provost Blake Sonobe, SWOSU College of Arts and Sciences Dean Radwan Al-Jarrah, SWOSU History Professor John Hayden as well as Dr. Grant.

An open house will also be held from 2-4 p.m. on Friday. Refreshments will follow the 3 p.m. ceremony. On Saturday, Oct. 16, an open house will also be held from noon-2 p.m.

SWOSU was founded in 1901. In 1908, the Oklahoma Legislature appropriated $100,000 for the construction of the Old Science Building. The three-story building with white Grecian columns sits on a hill overlooking the city of Weatherford. The building is listed on the National Register of Historic Places.

Homecoming honors Duke

This year's homecoming activities will be celebrated on Friday, Oct. 15 and Saturday, Oct. 16.

The theme for homecoming is "A SWOSU Tribute to Duke" in honor of SWOSU's mascot, Duke the Bulldog.

Everybody is invited to all of the events happening here in Weatherford.

On Friday, there will be a ceremony at the Old Science Building for its 100th birthday celebration. An open house and tours will be held between the hours of 2-4 p.m., with a ceremony starting at 3 p.m. If you cannot make Friday's celebration, the open house will also be held on Saturday from 12 noon-2 p.m.

The parade will start at 3 p.m. on Saturday on Main Street. It will have many bands, floats, and will give the community of Weatherford a chance to get together. The bands that will be playing in the parade will join our own SWOSU band in a pre-game performance starting at 5:30 p.m.

The Bulldogs will kick off at 6 p.m. against Northeastern State University. The homecoming king and queen will be announced during halftime of the football game.

After the football game, everyone is invited to the fireworks show.

"It will be one of the best fireworks shows you'll ever see," Brian Alder, SWOSU Director of Public Relations said.

Saving the Art on Campus

Art students spray paint old clothing last Wednesday and Thursday to raise awareness for the Art Education department's need for accreditation. Nikki Noa, Vice President of the Art Club, said that the accreditation was lost a few years ago and the department needs to get reaccredited. The Art Club is trying to spread the word that they want it to remain a major. (Photo by: John Weekly)

Pizza place to open in Weatherford shopping center

BY GREG RICHARDSON AND COURTNEY HAILEY

Staff Reporters

There's a new emperor in town.

Little Caesars, an inexpensive and fast pizza restaurant, will open on Oct. 26 in Weatherford.

The restaurant is located just off of Washington St. in the shopping plaza, next to GNC and Subway.

Little Caesars is a chain restaurant that caters to smaller budgets and tighter schedules. Some of its menu items include "Crazy Bread," which are seasoned breadsticks, and "Hot-and-Ready" pizza, which is already baked pizza ready for takeout.

Mike and Marian Illitch opened the first Little Caesars in Garden City, Mich., in 1959.

The original name was going to be Pizza Treat. However, Marian wanted a name that suited Mike. They had been married for four years and he was her hero. "Even though he hadn't accomplished much, I considered him my little Caesar," she said.

Mike played for the Detroit Tigers, but an injury cut his baseball career short. So, he traded in his baseball glove for oven mitts.

The mascot is a cartoon character of a Roman emperor wearing a toga and eating pizza.

One unique feature of the restaurant is that it is mainly a carryout restaurant. It does not have tables and chairs.

The tagline for the restaurant is "Pizza, Pizza," which started when Mike offered two pizzas for the price of one.

Southwestern students are excited by another pizza choice. One student said the "Hot-and-Ready" option is a great idea.

Pizza

"It's the most convenient meal ever," said Jay Weekley, a student at Southwestern.

Students like the instant carryout idea.

"I love it. I want a place where I can just get a pizza and not have to wait," said Nick Thurman.

Students who have previous encounters with the restaurant said it meets the financial situation of students.

"It's cheap and it's not bad," said Elyse Berta.

Another student likes the arrival of a new choice in eating in Weatherford.

"This is good – more food options in Weatherford," said Sahar Adibi.

Other pizza restaurants in Weatherford are Pizza Hut, Mazzio's, and Pizza Wings. Downtown Diner also offers pizza.

The Weatherford chapter of the American Association of University Women has organized gift baskets in support of Breast Cancer Awareness Month during October. AAUW encourages students to wear pink for cancer awareness October is "Breast Cancer Awareness Month," and the Weatherford Chapter of the American Association of University Women is helping to spread the word. Debbie Brown, president of the chapter, said members recognize the risk and impact that breast cancer can have on women's lives. Two current members are breast cancer survivors and one member lost a sister to breast cancer.

Members put together baskets containing mints and other items having the pink ribbon logo and messages of hope and support. Baskets are sponsored by the members themselves. In addition, the Susan G. Komen Breast Cancer Foundation donated breast self exam cards, and Miss Southwestern contributed pins featuring the pink ribbon logo as based on her platform of breast cancer awareness.

Canned food recital called a success

By JENNIFER OSBORNE
Staff Reporter

On Oct. 1 Mu Phi Epsilon hosted a canned food recital that went "really well" according to Program Chair Kathleen Crook.

The attendance wasn't all it could have been since the performance happened to fall on a Friday evening, however the outcome of 100 cans being donated by "the people performing, the audience, and the people who could not attend but still wanted to donate" made it well worth the effort according to Crook.

Mu Phi Epsilon is a professional music fraternity here on campus.

The members were driven enough by this event to hope that it will become an annual fundraiser for the years to come.

The results from the residential life drive come out in Stewart Hall's favor.

The girls in Stewart brought in 79 cans; Oklahoma came in second with 64 and R&J with 49.

All in all SWOSU raised a little shy of 300 cans of food, which will be donated to Weatherford's local food pantry in order to provide for families who are in need of food.

MOVIE REVIEW

By COURTNEY HAILEY
Staff Reporter

The Other Guys, starring Mark Wahlberg and Will Ferrell is a classic comedy about two cops who are at the bottom of the chain in the force but end up coming out on top.

Funny guy Will Ferrell is partners with serious man, Mark Wahlberg, in an attempt to catch a man who is trying to steal millions of dollars. They presume to make mistake after mistake which is where the comedy comes into play; however, their misleads and mishaps turn into the key to solving the crime in the end. The Other Guys is a very funny movie packed with jokes and action.

Wahlberg and Ferrell sit in the police department all day doing paper work while the other cops are out in the action arresting criminals. Wahlberg is bitter throughout the entire movie because of his demeaning job; however, Ferrell sits in his desk perfectly content with paper work and fetching donuts and coffee. Farrell's carefree attitude irritates Wahlberg to the point where he decides to just break the rules. Wahlberg goes against his captain's orders by leaving the office with Ferrell to try and solve the case.

Trying to catch the criminal who is attempting to steal millions, Ferrell and Wahlberg go through a high-speed car chase, a suspicious drug bust, and a hide out. By the end of the movie, Wahlberg and Ferrell come together not only as partners, but as friends, and Farrell's character realizes how much he misses the action of helping the city out but catching criminals.

DrumLine Live, a theatrical production created by the music team behind the hit movie Drumline, will be staged October 18, at 7:30 p.m. in the Fine Arts Center.

Tickets are now on sale for the show that will feature a cast of 39 members from some of the most outstanding marching band programs across the southern United States. The show brings black marching band traditions to the theatrical stage.

The idea for the tour came when band consultant Don Roberts was helping on the set of the Hollywood hit movie Drumline in 2002.

"You could just see the talent on display, and the energy building up, and I started realizing: There are people out here who have never experienced anything like this before, where 70,000 people crowd a stadium to cheer on marching bands," Roberts told the New Jersey Star-Ledger last year.

Even though Roberts and others have worked on the production since 2002, this is only the second year the show has toured in its current form.

The culture that many performers in the band come from is far different than the one in western Oklahoma. However, the show has seen great success in bridging that DrumLine Live will come to the Fine Arts Center on Oct. 18 as part of the Panorama series. The performance will start at 7:30 p.m.

"Just a couple weeks ago, we were in Kerrville, Texas, where the median age is 50-plus and the audience we were playing to was at least 95 percent white," tour manager Pete Date told the Star-Ledger. "But the response was just overwhelming. Two consecutive performances were sold out, and by the time we have this big exit in the show, the crowd was just erupting with applause and emotion. Here you had performers and an audience that couldn't be more different, yet this show was something fresh they could all identify with. That's when I knew we had something big."

Through auditions, musicians about the same age as most Southwestern students are selected to play on the tour. Therefore, students can relate to the excitement on the stage. The show's music director and drum major, Brian Snell, encourages students to go to the show.

"For those who don't live in the Southeast, who haven't had a chance to catch black college football games, or even high school games in some areas, the energy and the talent here is going to blow people away," Snell told the Star-Ledger.

The DrumLine Live took their show out of the country recently. Up until last week, they were in Tokyo, Nishinomiya (Japan), Nagoya (Japan), and Seoul, South Korea. They are currently touring the United States through February of next year.

DrumLine Live is a synchronized musical showcase sponsored by Columbia Artists of New York City. Incorporating original compositions and soul-infused interpretations of Top 40 hits, group performances range from colorful, choreographed routines to heavy doses of drum riffs and cadences. Southwestern Public Relations Director Brian Adler said the performance by DrumLine Live at SWOSU is the only show that will take place in Oklahoma. Advance tickets are $10 for SWOSU students, faculty/staff and emeriti; $15 for others; and $20 for all tickets at the door. Tickets are available at the SWOSU Public Relations & Marketing Office; the SWOSU Business Office; and Weatherford Daily News in downtown Weatherford. Athletic auction leads to memorable football night

By ROUBEN TOURIAN, ASSISTANT DIRECTOR FOR EXTERNAL OPERATIONS-ATHLETICS
Special to The Southwestern

On Aug. 7, we had our 4th Annual Athletic Scholarship Auction at Southwestern. The event has grown into one of the biggest events of the summer in Western Oklahoma and people anticipate the items they will see each year.

This year, we needed a twist to reach our goal of $100,000 so I contacted one of our former athletes for some help. It was Rex Ryan, Head Coach of the New York Jets! He agreed to give me Four (4) Tickets in his personal suite to last Monday night's NFL Football Game vs. the Minnesota Vikings. I was shocked but knew I could put a package together that would bring at least $8,000-$10,000. I was so excited that I immediately started contacting friends and donors to put the package together. At the end of the day, I had my friends at the Hilton Corporate office donate two rooms for three nights at the Hilton Short Hills, my friends at Bar S Foods and Journey House Travel took care of the four airline tickets, and an anonymous donor gave me a prepaid VISA giftcard to take care of meals, cab, etc. This was going to be a killer package.

Two days before the auction, I'm sweating because Favre is considering retirement. I'm scared the package isn't going to even bring $5K. Little did I know that 60 days later he would be back in full force. I sure didn't think there would be all of the TV and media hype due to a Randy Moss acquisition by the Vikings.

Rex Ryan has been so much help to my fundraiser each year as has his brother, Rob, who is with the Cleveland Browns.

What makes this story so exciting? SWOSU is a Division II University playing its final season in the Lone Star Conference. We aren't fully funded in athletics and we are just beginning to tune up our athletic facilities. So, we are a bunch of good guys working hard to compete and win!

You had three former athletes from SWOSU put together a winning situation for the athletic department.

I was fortunate enough to have the contacts to put this caliber of a package together with the help of one of another former athlete.

The very unique situation is the fact that another one of our former athletes, David Balezentis, bought the package for $30,000. This helped take the total profits of my fundraiser auction $93,000 last year to over $156,000 this year!

Balezentis is a former basketball player who played for SWOSU Hall of Fame Coach George Hauser in the late 1970s. He is a Tulsa area businessman who owns and operates Granite Fiberglass Pools & Spas. Balezentis and his wife, Paula, took a former teammate and his wife to the game.

Freshman wins bullriding event at Southeastern rodeo

DURANT, Okla. -- Southwestern Oklahoma State University's Derek Creswell was the top bull rider at the recently completed Southeastern Oklahoma State University rodeo.

Creswell, a freshman from Weatherford, was the easy winner in the event after winning both the short and long runs with 82 and 87-point rides. It was the first individual title for the college newcomer this season.

SWOSU as a team finished in 11th place in the men's standings.

Oklahoma Panhandle State was first with 515 points, Ft. Scott was second with 485 points and Northwestern Oklahoma State was third with 440 points.

SWOSU also got a strong performance from Austin Orgain who finished fourth in the calf roping after collecting fourth in the short round. Other cowboys who did well for the Bulldogs were Wade Payne who finished fifth in the long round in the saddle bronc competition and Brady Graff who teamed with his partner

Travis Cowan of NWOSU to finish sixth in the average in team roping.

Two other cowboys -- Justin Anderson in bareback riding and Jarrod Branch in calf roping -- finished among the top 10 in their individual event.

On the women's side, SWOSU finished seventh with 70 points. Oklahoma State was the team champion with 300 points, Panhandle State was next with 230 points and Garden City was third with 70 points.

Brittney Teel won fourth in the average in breakaway roping on the strength of her sixth-place showing in the long round and fourth-place effort in the short round.

Weatherford's Amy Outhier finished in a two-way tie for fourth in the goat tying event. She turned in a 3.87 second time in the long round which earned her a three-way tie for second. She finished sixth in the short round.

Caia Parker continued to have a strong rodeo season through the early portion of the schedule by finishing among the top 10 in barrel racing.

Football looses heartbreaker in double overtime

DURANT, Okla. – Southwestern Oklahoma State University extended its high-level of football play to a second week as the Bulldogs engaged longtime rival Southeastern Oklahoma State in remarkable battle that went into double overtime before a victor was determined. Southeastern came away with a 42-35 win that will long be remembered for its multiple momentum changes and its dramatic conclusion.

The loss dropped SWOSU to 1-5 overall and 1-2 in the Lone Star Conference North Division while the Savage Storm improved to 2-4 overall and 1-2 in the division.

SWOSU was unable to answer Southeastern's touchdown score on its second overtime possession. Quarterback Dustin Stenta, who had brought the Bulldogs back with a heroic fourth-quarter effort, couldn't get the Bulldogs in the endzone a sixth time when his fourth-down pass fell incomplete.

The Bulldogs forced overtime with a remarkable rally and tied the game at 28-28 when Colton Rainey nailed a 47-yard field goal as time expired. Rainey's kick concluded 18 consecutive points that the Bulldogs reeled over the final 10 minutes of regulation.

Trailing 28-10, SWOSU started its charge when Stenta guided his troops 85 yards over 11 plays and scored on a seven-yard run of his own to trim the Savage Storm's lead to 28-17 with 5:17 to play. The big play in the drive was a 32-yard, pass-and-catch to Eric Charles that pushed the ball into Southeastern territory.

The SWOSU defense forced Southeastern to three-and-out and the Bulldogs had the ball back at midfield with 3:36 to play. Stenta again found Charles on an 18-yard gain that put SWOSU into scoring range. Stenta then delivered a 17-yard strike to Jordan Davis who shook free of two tacklers and crossed the goal line. Rainey's conversion kick was good and SWOSU was within three at 28-25 with 2:11 to play.

The Bulldog defense turned in another three-and-out and SWOSU had the ball after a punt on its own 19-yard line with 56 seconds remaining on the clock. The Bulldogs again got started. Timmy Winans caught a 13-yard pass, Ryan Corbin hauled in an 11-yarder and SWOSU neared midfield when good fortune smiled. Stenta fumbled but it was recovered by Bulldog running back Dwight Pete who advanced the ball nine yards to the Southeastern 35. Then the Savage Storm were whistled for offside a play later and the ball was setting on the SOSU 30, close enough for Rainey who delivered in the clutch.

SWOSU scored first in the overtime period when Samuel Burnett caught his first career touchdown pass, a six-yarder from Stenta. The lead didn't last long as SOSU answered with a score of their own when Logan Turner connected with Robbie Morris on a four-yard touchdown pass to knot the game at 35-all.

SOSU had possession first in the second overtime and scored what would eventually be the game winner. Turner through what would be his fifth touchdown of the game when he connected with Ryan Shelly on a 17-yard connection.

Statistically, Stenta was the offensive star for SWOSU. He finished the game completing 29-of-60 passes for 291 yards and two touchdowns. Charles was his primary target finishing the game with 103 yards on six catches.

On the defensive side, SWOSU had a number of players do well. Preston Margain led the team with eight tackles while teammate Jonathan Darby was close behind with seven. Each made a number of big stops in the fourth quarter that helped bring the Bulldogs back. Marvin Tribble added another interception to his season total to raise his league-leading mark to four.

Kicker Colton Rainey gets ready for a field goal attempt. Rainey was one of two Bulldogs to win weekly honors for their play last Saturday.

Rainey, Burgess win honors

Two members of Southwestern's football team have been selected as award winners for their performances in the Bulldogs' 42-35 double-overtime loss to Southeastern Oklahoma on Saturday.

Kicker Colton Rainey was chosen by the Lone Star Conference as the North Division Special Teams Player-of-the-Week and linebacker Jaron Burgess was the winner of the BigUSports.com Defensive Player-of-the-week.

Rainey, a sophomore from Lawton MacArthur High School, drilled a 47-yard field goal as time expired to send the game into overtime. He earlier had made good on his first field goal attempt of the year, a 29-yarder in the second quarter.

Burgess, a senior from Norman North High School, recorded two sacks and a forced fumble. He finished the contest with five solo tackles, while assisting on two. In all, he helped force 24-yards of lost yardage by the Savage Storm offense.

Both Rainey and Burgess will next be in action Saturday as the Bulldogs host Northeastern State University in a homecoming battle beginning at 6 p.m. at Fast Lane Field.

The Bulldogs were fired up the weekend by winning both home soccer games. The team beat Northeastern 2-1 on Friday and East Central 1-0 on Saturday.

Friday's game was against Northeastern State. Courtney Hailey scored the first goal in the 25th minute of the game from a nice pass made by Jessica Carbonara. The Bulldogs were leading the game until Northeastern scored late in the game and tied it up 1-1.

The Bulldogs went into Sunday's game with a lot of confidence from the big win on Friday. The opponent on Sunday was East Central. The girls struggled a little bit in the first half, having a hard time finding a goal. Each player re-grouped during halftime, and in the 51st minute of the game, Josie Price scores a goal by heading it right past the keeper. The ball came from a perfect cross from Elyse Berta off of a corner kick.

The wins put the Bulldogs back at .500 with a record of 6-6 and back on track to try and go for the conference tournament. The girls take on Midwestern this Friday in Wichita Falls, Texas at 7 p.m.
